'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The Boy Scout movement does other things beside build character in the coming generation.

This was conclusively proven last night in the mobilization test held at Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue under the direction of Scout Executive Robert Cox.

Fifteen minutes after a mobilization call had been sent out the first detachment of Boy Scouts arrived in full pack equipment, ready for any emergency.

Every troop in the city was represented and some of them were on hand 100 per cent strong.

That displays not only a willingness on the part of the boys but an excellent type of leadership.

Richmond boys, and fathers and mothers too, for that matter, are fortunate in having a group of scoutmasters who are interested in teaching the boys how to meet life.

Useful things which will come in handy in saving life and in aiding others is also taught the boys.

Then too, the youngsters have an opportunity to enjoy good clean fun under the supervision of able leaders.

Tests like the one held last night indicate the hard work on the part of scoutmasters has not been in vain.

Police Chief Dan Cox who was on hand when the test was under way expressed himself as highly pleased with the result. The chief probably saw in the spirit displayed by young Richmond a valuable ally if the need should ever arise.

Robert Cox, scout commissioner of this district, scoutmasters, patrol leaders and others who had part in the mobilization and display last night can well feel proud of the record they made and the excellent training which was displayed by the scouts.

PICTURE, CAR NUMBER GIVEN

Richmond Boy Scouts showed the city of Richmond last night what they can do in an emergency.

At six o'clock last night, Robert F. Cox, local Scout executive, picked up his telephone and called his scoutmasters, ordering every troop in the city to mobilize at Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue immediately, equipped to meet any emergency.

Fifteen minutes later, Troop 10, of the Grant school district, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Ernest Watrous, arrived at the corner, ready for duty. Troop 9, under Scoutmaster George Shaw, arrived a few minutes later to be followed by Troop No. 14 under the direction of Scoutmaster M. P. Fabricius.

Within a short time 11 Boy Scout troops of 150 boys had assembled at the corner.

Search Started

With the troops assembled, Cox informed the boys that little Charles Benson, 5, of Albany had been "kidnapped" by Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Duggan of Richmond; and were last seen in Duggan's car. The license number of the car and a picture of the missing boy were given to the boys.

And the search started.

Every section of the city was covered by Boy Scouts on foot or riding bicycles. Flashlights gleamed, cars were stopped and the occupants examined.

Thirty-five minutes later the "missing" boy was found at Third street and Cutting boulevard by

90 PETS OF DANCER BURN

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—UP—"Too deeply grieved" to see anyone, Irene Castle McLaughlin, famed dancer and lover of animals, took to her room tonight after fire had destroyed some 90 howling mongrels in her 'orphans of the Storm' kennels.

Mrs. McLaughlin, wife of Major Frederic McLaughlin, wealthy sportsman colapsed after the fire was subsided at the kennels she established for homeless pups several years ago. Grime-covered and weeping, she was taken to her home in Lake Forest, exclusive suburb, where she was reported to be in a state of near hysteria.

One hundred twenty five dogs, all of indefinite parentage, were housed in the luxurous kennels. Fire broke out in the buildings early in the morning. The caretaker freed as many of the dogs as he could but not more than 30 were saved.

Police said they suspected arson.

USE OF SUBS RESTRICTED BY PARLEY

LONDON, Feb. 11—(U.P.)—History was made today at the five-power naval conference. Several hours after a plenary session devoted to discussion of submarines, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson announced that the powers had agreed definitely to subject submarines to all rules governing surface warship operations against merchant vessels.

It was inferred that Britain and the United States would not press their plan to abolish submarines at the present conference, but Stimson added:

"I think the debate showed a rising tide in the desire on the part of the nations for eventual abolition of that weapon of warfare and marks a step in that direction."

U. S. Jubilant

The chief American delegate appeared jubilant over the decision to restrict submarine warfare. So far as known, it was the first five-power agreement reached at the conference, which opened three weeks ago.

"I regard that single incident as worth the visit of our delegation to London," Stimson said. "It marks a step forward in a matter our country once went to war about. I am very much pleased that a motion to restrict the use of submarines against merchant ships came from the French delegation. I think it a very happy augury of the leadership of Premier Tardieu."

Stimson explained that the decision against unlimited submarine warfare was not merely tentative but definite. He said that while the

2500 UNEMPLOYED RIOTERS IN CLEVELAND ROUTED BY WATER

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—UP—Fire hose, brought into play as a last resort, of police reserves before the use of firearms, dispersed a yelling, fighting mob of 2500 unemployed who stormed the city hall today.

The demonstrators had gone to demand action in their behalf by the welfare committee of the city council.

Five hundred of them burst yelling into the hall before the police could close the doors and bar the way to those outside.

Nearby patrolmen ran to the city hall. Soon they were reinforced by reserves. Still there was not enough police to de[illegible] the mob and the police department's radio system was utilized to draw available men to the scene.

The crowd fought back. Those in the council chamber, having broken up the welfare committee's meeting, went outside again to join their comrades and the city hall itself was cleared.

The mob jammed on and around the steps of the building, and defied police to move them. Those in the vanguard of the crowd came into play when police tried to disperse them by pushing. It was apparent that the situation was becoming serious, and fearing bloodshed, the police called out the fire department.

DRY LAW MOP LOOMS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(U.P.)—All signs pointed tonight to a thorough dry law mopping up in Chicago, long reputed to be an oasis for citizens afflicted with illicit interests.

Indictment of more than 150 individuals and corporations, including two major manufacturing companies, on charges of violation of prohibition laws, were climaxed by announcement of Congressman John C. Shafer, Wisconsin, that he would seek to have a Congressional committee investigate liquor conditions in the Chicago area.

James M. Doran, National prohibition commissioner, hurried to St. Paul yesterday, when the indictments involving perfumers and other manufacturers using alcohol all over the nation were revealed. Doran is scheduled to hold a conference with E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator for the Chicago district.

The conference gave rise to reports that Yellowley either would be dismissed or transferred. Doran refused by telephone to confirm or deny them.

Doran also was expected to go to Springfield, Ill., where indictments against the Corn Products Refining company and the Fleischman Yeast company on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws were announced. The firms were reported to have been charged by a federal grand jury with having furnished large shipments of yeast and malt sugar to producers of illicit liquor.

The government moved rapidly here to prosecute the 31 firms and 157 individuals indicted on charges of flooding the country for seven years with millions of gallons of recovered alcohol.

The United Sates District Attorney's office announced that three attorneys already had started preparation of the legal papers for one big trial of the alleged conspirators in Chicago. The indictments returned on the Pacific coast will be tried in Los Angeles, it was said, but all other defendants will be brought here.

According to the plans, two main spans will be built. The first will be between Point San Pablo and Brothers Island, 1100 feet long, and having a vertical clearance of 200 feet. The other will be 1500 feet long with a clearance of 175 feet.

7 INJURED IN SHIP BLASTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—UP—Fire raging spectacularly in defiance of tons of water and chemicals, scuttled the North German Lloyd liner Munchen today within a few hours after the 13,438 ton vessel had completed a stormy Atlantic crossing and had reached its North River pier.

At dusk this evening home goers aboard commuting ferries stared in awe at the endless black billows of smoke still erupting from the stricken steamer, which was virtually on its side with the stern clamped in mud.

Although the blaze was punctured by at least three sharp explosions of such intensity that one man was hurled 50 feet into the air, it appeared that only two lives were lost. A fireboat pilot was shot into the river wrom which his body was taken three hours later and a German electrician, at his post on the flaming liner, tugged at switches until he was burned to death.

Seven Injured

Seven persons, including a stewardess, were injured. It was believed that all would recover. Damage to the Munchen, which almost certainly was a complete loss except for such massed metal as may find a place in the junkyard of ships,

DAUM BANQUET PLANS MADE

Final preparations for the visit of W. H. Daum, president of the California Real Estate association here Saturday night, were made at a meeting of the Richmond Real Estate board yesterday afternoon in the offices of M. A. Hays, with W. J. Richards, Jr., presiding.

As the space at the Hotel Carquinez, where the dinner meeting is to be held, is limited, it was suggested at the meeting that reservations for the dinner should be made immediately with Mrs. W. H. Sanford, 2221 Macdonald avenue, chairman of the committee in charge.

Preparations for Daum's visit are rapidly being arranged by the committee.

Daum will arrive here Saturday afternoon and will be taken on a tour of the city. He will be shown Richmond's industrial acreages as he is more than interested in industries.

Richards, E. B. Bull, M. A. Hays, J. B. Corrie and Ed Burg will take charge of the arrangements for the tour of Richmond.

It is expected that Glenn D. Willaman, state secretary, will accompany Daum on the tour.

Daum will address the meeting. His talk is awaited with much interest by the local realtors.

A turkey dinner will be served and a musical program will be enjoyed.

Tonight a group of local realtors will go to Martinez where they will attend a meeting of the Contra Costa county board of realtors who will honor Daum and Williaman.

Among the local realtors who will attend the meeting are Richards, Mrs. Sanford, Hays, Corrie, E. J. Burg, William Metz and others.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

The Cruelty of Youth

MARIA BUSACCA had a pretty face. Maria Busacca had a brilliant mind and an even greater ambition. Maria Busacca had a loving heart. But Maria Busacca—probably because of a glandular disease, though it had never been diagnosed—was hopelessly, increasingly fat; she weighed two hundred and thirty-five pounds and had gained one hundred of them in a year.

So, since Maria Busacca was nineteen, since she was tired of being teased and laughed at, since her every pitiful, home-made attempt to reduce failed—she turned on the gas, one day last week in her Brooklyn home, and died while they were trying to bring her back to the life that unthinking cruelty had made a torture no longer to be borne. "Fat Girl Who Smiled at Mockers Stills Breaking Heart With Gas," said The World's headline.

What woman can help wincing over the pathetic true story—or wincing again, as she reflects how many times, in its essentials, it is repeated, even if the ending does not achieve such a tragic finality? We had always rather defend youth than criticise it, but the truth is that youth is abominably cruel to ugly ducklings. The girl who is too stout, the boy who has grown head and shoulders above his companions, the red-haired child, the youngster a bit shabbily dressed—how do they not suffer, under the ridicule, the snubbing, the exclusion of other young persons!

Jeers and jokes beat continually upon the sensitiveness of child and adolescent in any way "different" in appearance from the trade model of age and group. Even though, fortunately, youthful resilience keeps the derided and neglected ones from killing themselves, they may be wounded for life: the far-famed inferiority complex is often traceable to cruel teasing, at an early age, by contemporaries. Why must they be so intolerant, so brutal?

GRANTED that the instinct to attack the ugly duckling is a flock or herd instinct, an inheritance from animal ancestors—yet isn't it about time that this instinctive cruelty was left to animals? Boys and girls however young, are supposed to have some intelligence, some imagination, some mannerly control of instinct.

How can they justify themselves—of course if they stop to think they cannot!—for making life miserable for a homely, or overgrown, or awkward, or shabby schoolmate?

Poor Maria Busacca laughed good-naturedly, the story goes, when she was teased about being fat. Most youngsters try to be good sports under teasing. But her father and mother knew how she felt, and even, according to report, moved from New Jersey to Brooklyn to escape from her "friendly" tormentors.

In vain. This is not one of those parables of a girl's vanity, ready to make every sacrifice to achieve a fashionable slenderness. This is simply a tragically intensified case of the girl who knows that she is an "odd one" in her crowd, for some characteristic of looks or dress which she cannot alter. Many a grown woman, successful in her work, in her friendships, in her love, never forgets the party she attended at fifteen, when nobody paid her any friendly attention, and she knew that the other girls in the dressing room were laughing at her as "a freak."

Ugly ducklings, of course, may turn out swans. Even if they do not, they receive better treatment as they grow older. Their contemporaries acquire either a finer scale of values in passing judgment, or better manners. For the ugly ducklings, the first thirty years are the hardest. But why need they be as hard as they are? Why must the ridicule of youth for youth be ruthless?

DEFENSES

I love her smart gaminerie,
The wilful things she says to me,

The serpent way that she will coil
And strike—the glitter of her foil

In touche and parry, and the wit
With which she tips the end of it.

I will not tell her name, for, oh,
I saw her when she did not know,

And she was neither hard nor wise,
And tears were standing in her eyes.

LIFE'S COMPENSATIONS

On slightly cloudy days, to see the office manager come trotting in with an umbrella and a package containing rubbers, because his dear wife insisted upon it.

To hear the same office manager giving others advice on how to be the boss at home.

In the subway, to overhear the superlatives being tossed about by two men on the subject of their youngsters—each proud papa trying to outdo the other.

The newly engaged girl's business of making every possible effort to display her diamond ring.

Slapping Hands

"DON'T touch," says Mother, and accompanies the command with a stinging rap on the hand. The baby looks up with a bewildered expression, too startled to cry. After this has happened again and again the little one is afraid to touch anything! This is fine for the bric-a-brac and other breakable articles in the home, but is it so good for the child?

The infant learns about his small world by staring at everything within his view, and later by handling his toys and his fingers and toes. But as soon as he can creep and toddle, a much larger world is opened up to him. Now he is eager to find out about everything, and his chief source of information is his sense of touch. Through touching he learns hard and soft, round and pointed, smooth and rough, and so on. What happens to him when we slap his hands, thus cutting off this avenue of information? We stunt his curiosity and hence his mental growth, and we delay the acquisition of much useful knowledge.

A friend of mine had a nursemaid, of whom she thought very well. But one day she saw her little girl stretch out her hand for a bright ribbon and then quickly draw it back with a frightened expression. When the nurse was asked whether she could explain this action she answered: "I have taught her not to touch things by slapping her hands. You don't want everything in the place ruined, do you?"

None of us "want everything in the place ruined." But can't we protect our things and our children as well? Can't we put most of the breakables in rooms which the young children do not frequent, out of reach of small hands, until these little ones reach a more discriminatory age? Then also, can't we give our youngsters plenty of materials which they are permitted to handle? Our sewing basket will be much safer if the child has one of his own, containing empty spools, buttons and other odds and ends. Our book shelves, likewise, will be less attractive to the little ones if they have some books and shelves of their own. Empty boxes of all kinds, with lids to open and close, may make the ice box door less tempting. Toys that little fingers can manipulate will also keep busy hands out of mischief.

We shall find that, if our children have interesting materials to keep them occupied, they will show less interest in touching our things. Occasionally, however, we may have to say, "No, dear, please don't play with that ash tray. It is Daddy's. Here is a dish you may have."

The slapping habit is a bad one for an adult to acquire. A parent may begin by slapping only occasionally, but after a while her hand darts out, unconsciously, whenever she is irritated. It is a dangerous weapon, dangerous for the adult as well as for the child.

High Necklines

A TENDENCY of designers to bring the neckline closer to the throat especially in tuck-in blouses and the shortened overblouse, is much in evidence. Sometimes it is very close to the throat, again it has the additional charm of a narrow, childish collar. In frocks of faconne or woven prints and the quaint shirt-waist prints the closer and higher neckline is becomingly achieved by a lingerie vestee and little collar. Collars are decidedly small these days in tailored and sports blouses.

If an egg that is frozen is put into a cup of boiling water and left there until water is cold the egg will be good for use again.

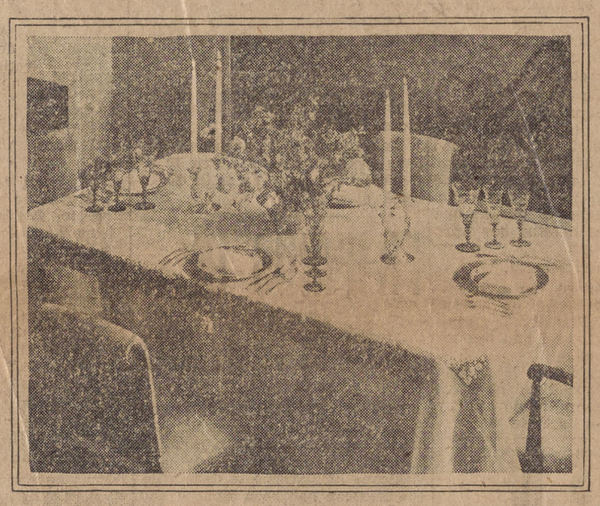
TWO-TONE SHOES FAVORED

TWO-LEATHER combinations are favored for spring shoes. The brown kid low-cut oxford at the top has inserts of beige suede with perforated dots. Dark green kid, with bands of water snake, fashions the strap model at centre. The blue kid shoe below it is trimmed with graceful appliqued bands of the kid and has a buckle of gilt and light blue enamel.

Tales That Tables Tell

By Alma Zaiss

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930



DO YOU remember the elusive shadow-embroidery which—some ten or fifteen years ago—appeared upon filmy fabrics such as organdie and batiste? Like many other beautiful things, this vogue disappeared for a time while lesser rivals paraded themselves. But now it has come back to us, more intricate in design, more elaborate than ever. And instead of limiting its scope to the usual fields of lingerie, blouses and baby clothes, it appears at the table, besprinkled over the entire length and breadth of a sheer organdie cloth and napkins.

Summer service, you surmise. But you are not so right as you think. This most elegant cloth is just frosty enough and transparent enough to suggest a royal table spread in some ice palace of the imagination. And so we find it a most appropriate winter cloth for formal functions.

From the illustration you may form some idea of the delicacy of the work—provided the organdie dinner cloth designed by Mme. Gallenga reproduces well in the printing. We hope you can trace its enchanting motif of flowers and trees and fawns browsing in and out of the pattern. The appointments of black glass and silver are in sharp contrast with its whiteness and accentuate the sheer quality of the cloth and as the season advances, what other delightful color scheme could be carried out? With the first suggestion of spring, as winter frosts disappear and here and there notes of green peep through, this mood may be reflected at the table by white crystal goblets set upon pale green stems, and a centre bowl of green crystal filled with spring flowers. At Easter time what a symbolic setting could be arranged upon the Gallenga cloth—a perfect background for a centrepiece of lilies whose golden hearts are echoed by rims of gold on service plates of cobalt blue.

Of course these shadowy organdie dinner sets are handmade, and therefore in the luxury class. But they furnish much inspiration for the hostess who seeks novelty and that suggestion of richness which only handwork and fineness impart.

TELLING THE WORLD

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

THE United States Senate is better than a sewing circle now. But it'll get around to this yet:

BROOKHART—Gentlemen, enforcement conditions in New York City are terrible. I am disgusted to know they are operating a wide-open bar right inside Grant's Tomb, one of the leading structures of the city. Last St. Valentine's Day they were serving pousse cafes and rum punches te $1.25 a shot, and these were being gobbled up by high society people.

COPELAND—Was the Senator inside this bar in Grant's Tomb on St. Valentine's Day?

BROOKHART—No, but I am reliably informed of these horrible doings by a letter signed Rip Van Winkle, who evidently knows what's going on.

HEFLIN—What did the Senator from Iowa say was being served in the Grant's Tomb bar?

BROOKHART—Pousse cafes and rum punch.

HEFLIN—If the Senate will appoint an investigating committee, it will find this is a Papist plot. And I will bet my bottom dollar it was not rum punch, but Roman punch.

BROOKHART—The Senator from Alabama is undoubtedly right.

HEFLIN—I haven't been wrong since I bet on the Monitor-Merrimac fight.

BORAH—Prohibition is not being enforced in my State, either.

BROOKHART—It isn't being enforced around Washington even. The other night at a private dinner party I attended in Mrs. Fythington's home there was whiskey, gin and beer planked right down on the table. I sneaked two bottles into the tail of my Prince Albert coat for evidence.

HEFLIN—Who was at this private orgy?

BROOKHART—Well, my colleague, Senator Swish, was there, drunk as a lord. Then Messrs. Glupp and Fink, our two esteemed Cabinet officers, were present with a terrific edge on. The Ambassador from Monrovia passed out cold and rolled under the table, and I saw Congressman Goop trying to pick his hostess's pocket. I was the only guest that behaved himself. (Applause.)

SHEPPARD—This is terrible!

BROOKHART—It's just a sample of what's going on all the time. Why, I understand they are selling Scotch at the Public Library and there is a speakeasy in the left wing of the Lincoln Memorial. I have not visited these places myself, but I am told so in a letter I received from a constituent named Etaoin Shrdlu.

HEFLIN—I know him well. He's perfectly reliable.

BROOKHART—Conditions are bad all over the country. In Boston you can buy a drink right on the ground floor of Bunker Hill Monument. They are selling Bacardi cocktails in the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago, and right here in Washington the bootleggers are in control of the Smithsonian Institute, and they are diverting the alcohol for preserving rare snakes to a cutting plant over the Ethnology Department and putting out a medium grade of rye.

BORAH—I can't believe things are in such a state!

BROOKHART—Conditions are exactly as I have stated them. I did not visit these places myself, but I have a letter here from a man named Baron Munchausen setting forth these facts.

HEFLIN—It's outrageous!

BROOKHART—And not only that, but I know for a fact it was a Wall Street broker named Braddish who kidnapped Charley Ross and I've got a postcard in my pocket signed Minnie W. that says so.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A final course of something sweet is most desirable at the simple dinner served at home. Extra care in the selection of the dessert insures all-around gustatory satisfaction whereas an indifferent choice would bring downright dissatisfaction with the whole meal.

NANCY DORRIS

The man of the house forgets the plain dinner he is probably the better for eating in the enjoyment of his favorite course. The right dessert transforms a plain meal into a feast, as far as he is concerned.

Such a special dessert need not be costly or overfancy, however. It may keep without the budget limits and still taste like an expensive sweet. For example, there is

PINEAPPLE PUDDING

Three egg yolks
One pint of milk
Two to four tablespoons sugar
Custard cooking time: 6-10 minutes double boiler.
One dozen lady fingers
Six macaroons
One cup crushed pineapple, or more
Three egg whites
One-fourth cup powdered sugar
Meringue time: 10-12 minutes slow oven

Servings: six

The pudding is a combination of a soft custard, crushed pineapple, lady fingers and macaroons topped with a meringue perfectly browned. Sliced oranges, bananas, peaches, grated apple, any canned or stewed fruit well-drained, or fresh berries may be used instead of the pineapple.

The custard should be prepared first. Into the double boiler top place the egg yolks well beaten, with the pint of whole milk and sugar to taste. Let cook gently over the hot water until the custard will coat a metal spoon—from six to ten minutes, depending upon the heat. Cool a bit.

Line the baking dish—glass is nice—with halved lady fingers and the macaroons. Arrange spoons of well-drained crushed pineapple or pineapple shreds over the sweet cakes. Carefully pour the slightly cooled custard over the pineapple and cakes, spreading with a spatula.

Whip the egg whites until stiff and add the powdered sugar slowly. Pile the meringue thus made over the custard; roughen the surface and place in a slow oven—300 degrees—until delicately brown, about ten or twelve minutes. Serve hot or cold from the baking dish.

The Beauty Shop

From the Average to the Distinct

NOT fat, not thin; no lines, wrinkles, puffs, bags, puckers or blemishes; hair palpably healthy; features regular; teeth, eyes, hands and feet rather above the average; clothes in good taste; manners correct but just a shade prim. And that spells Caroline.

FRANCES OLIVIER

From this description, one not knowing Caroline might be expected, and with good reason, to say, "Well, she sounds as if she might be rather unusual." But she isn't. Indeed, she's rather average. What is more, she knows it. Often we have heard her ask, "What's wrong with my picture? Why can't I look the heroines of smart novels?" Only they were rhetorical questions, questions to which only boors or certain types of relative ever give answer, and we are no kin of Caroline.

However, for the sake of the other Carolines, this is the answer we'd like to offer: Honestly, do you want to know? Well, it's this: you're a nice sensible girl! And we say it and italicize it at the risk of bringing all the mothers and some of the husbands who read this column down on our necks.

Caroline, you won't use bath salts because you consider it extravagant. In your words, "I just hate spending good money to perfume the drainpipe." Furthermore, you have a black-and-blue complex. (Ed. note: This girl wears only black and blue clothes nine months of the year.) Of course, if you would relieve this sombre scheme with a daring bit of jewelry or a rash scarf, or even an extra layer of rouge and lipstick. . . . But no, you use barely enough of the latter and nothing ever else but synthetic pearls around that "ivory tower" of yours.

Oh, Caroline, you're so afraid of being conspicuous or of overstepping the bounds of propriety and good taste, or of being extravagant, just so afraid. Your idea of economy is to buy one black dress and put some money in the bank, instead of buying a black one and red one and not putting some money in the bank. Don't you know, oh, foolish virgin, that a red dress is an investment?

Don't you know that people who are forever counting the cost usually look just like that? These smart novel heroines you aspire to resemble, all their rare jewels, their specially designed perfumes, their Rue de la Paix wardrobes, are created for them by their authors—no wonder they are distinctive and nonchalant? So we should forget about them if we were you. No good striving toward impossible goals, is there?

But cast off your pearls and your navy blue frock now and then in favor or something vivid in frocks and jewels and try not to be always so "sensible." For you, with your fine natural equipment of skin and hair and eyes and character and so forth, the change will most likely bring distinction.

Fashions for the South

TWO accessories matching, to create an ensemble effect, is the theme in Southern costumes. Bags match shoes while hosiery is keyed to the glove shade. All the suntan tones are smart in gloves when blended to the stocking color, yet white doeskin gloves remain most popular for daytime.

White and brown kid shoes predominate in day costumes. Fabric shoes, especially in Shantung, are worn for spectator sports and for afternoon. Other fabrics are seen in shoes dyed to match the motifs in printed frocks.

Jewelry is worn in variety but the most striking in semi-precious stones is carved jade and carnelian in sets of earrings, bracelets and chokers. For beach wear are pearl shaped pieces made of rubber sponge. There are also attractive necklaces, bracelets and even anklets made of wood.

The high French heeled wooden clog in color to match or harmonize with the beach costume is outstanding.

DOUGLAS, MARY CO-STARRED IN CLASSIC

Doug and Mary together. Picture fans have been waiting for this for years. And now they can be both seen and heard together. The two outstanding figures in the film world, each a great attraction, have now joined forces to give theater goers a measure of entertainment full to the brim and overflowing. Tomorrow all roads will lead to the Fox-California theater.

The first joint appearance of these great stars will be in a glorious all talking frolic of love and laughter: Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." This is not only the lightest and frothiest of Shakesperean works, but is the story on which all the modern tales of cave men are based.

Directed and adapted by Sam Taylor, the picture has been superbly mounted and costumed. Doug plays the part of a young man who sets out to win a girl famous for a temper so wild and stormy that no man dares to come near her. Mary has the role of the beautiful Katherine who is not afraid of any man and matches her wits and good right arm against any one who dares try to woo her.

The whole story revolves around the attempts of Doug to win the girl who will not be won by any method ever tried. He finally finds a way but not until the audience is carried through a series of the most laughable situations.

The talking comedy "Ticklish Business" is also on the program.

Being Tamed

MARY PICKFORD and Douglas Fairbanks in one of the riotous scenes from "Taming Of The Shrew," which is coming to the Fox-California theater tomorrow.

The Fox-California theater offered a genuine romantic treat last night.

It is the screen adaptation of "Conquistador," a sparkling novel of the southwest by Katherine Fullerton Gerould, ably brought to the talking screen by Fox Movietone, under the brilliant guiding hand of Director Alfred Santell.

The story concerns two cousins, one a half American (Mexican on his mother's side) and his Mexican cousin. They are jealous about a vast estate, the property of their grandfather, and particularly over Mary Duncan. This intriguing beauty, in the role of Carlotta, is too much for any man to resist.

Warner Baxter as the half caste cousin, wins the affections of a number of charmers—and, too, by the way he can sing. Antonio Moreno, playing his first "heavy" role as Juan, is passionately fond of Carlotta and proves a brilliant foil for Baxter, who in our humble opinion is one of the outstanding actors of the stage and screen.

This story moves at a brisk pace without a pause from first to last scene. Almost at the very opening from the attack by bandits on a construction job, to the fatal struggle at the end, one has to hold one's breath, so gripping is the action.

Baxter, as Pablo, is wounded by the attacking bandits. He slumps over his horse, which dashes away, insuring his safety from capture. In his saddle bags is the very money which the bandits were after.

This leads to even more bitter feeling between them. And when Juan discovers that Carlotta is unfaithful to him, he kills her. Then comes a terrific struggle between the cousins. Manuelita warns the newcomer...

But it is not our intention to give the story entirely away. We herewith conclude by wholeheartedly recommending that you see it.

Talking comedy, "Stewed, Fried and Boiled."

Hutton Freed On Burglary Charge

Albert Hutton was yesterday freed of charges of first degree burglary by his brother John Hutton, 42 Twelfth street. The case was dismissed in Superior court in Martinez yesterday, the judge ruling that as Albert had been staying at his brothers' house by invitation, no charge greater than petty theft could be pressed.

John Hutton in preferring charges, alleged that his brother had stolen two overcoats from his house and pawned them.

Warm guests--

when there is heat at a finger's touch

Cheap natural gas brings the luxury of automatic, carefree heating to every home. A thermostat or a push-button regulates the temperature. No trips to the basement on cold mornings. No bother about starting a fire when friends come—a finger's touch gives you instant heat. And any healthful temperature is maintained throughout your home.

With clean natural gas, the curtains, wall-paper and furniture retain their fresh cleanliness. There is no smoke or soot about your property.

A hotter, cleaner and cheaper fuel

Even though you have no basement, there are fine types of gas-fired equipment for your home.

Natural gas contains twice as much heat as the former manufactured gas. Natural gas is a much cheaper fuel. It is the easiest fuel to control and is absolutely safe when burned in modern appliances, correctly installed.

For full details about heating equipment that burns the cheap natural gas, see a heating contractor or phone or call at our office.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

An Immortal Statue to the Golden Rule

"Do Unto Others As You Would Be Done By"

Figures in stone are subject to time and decay, but the inspiration of the Golden Rule, the guiding spirit of Lincoln's ideals, is the immortal tribute to his noble greatness.

His humility was the essence of his greatness, and in his greatness he practiced loving kindness, - - - He lived that there might be established a fuller sense of the rights of man and the pursuit of peace and happiness.

That his loving sacrifice may not have been in vain the Nation may well pause on this day of his anniversary, and not only pay tribute in reverent thought, but give evidence of sincerity by sharing his inspiration and emulating his example.

HONORS EVEN IN CHURCH CAGE CONTESTS

A third play-off for the championship of the Y. M. C. A. church league is necessary as a result of the San Pablo Baptist's 23 to 15 victory over the First Christian champions of the A divisino last night.

The lightweight San Pablans "ran rings" around the heavier but slower First Christian athletes. They smashed through the Christians' defense at every available spot, while their own defense was almost impregnable. Johnny DeCorten of San Pablo startled the fans by sinking a total of 11 points all from midfloor. Johnson was high pointer for the losers, gaining a total of seven points.

The champions of the A and B divisions are now tied for the championship of the entire league. The date for the deciding contest has not yet been set.

The starting lineup of the San Pablo Baptists in last night's contest was as follows: Motoza 4, C. Cervenka 2, forwards; Vierra 4, center; DeCorten 11, Nevis at guards; substitutes, G. Cervenka 2, center.

The men who saw action with the First Christians were: Santella 4, Brown, forwards; Johnson 8, center; Livermore, Abbott 3, at guards; substitutes, Ferguson, forward; H. Sprague, guard.

Richmond Y. M. D. Cagers Play S. F. Tomorrow Night

The Richmond Y. M. D. cagers will compete with the San Francisco Y. M. D. quintet tomorrow night in the finals of the Y. M. D. basketball competition in the state Y. M. C. A. Californiad. The game will be played in the Chinese branch of the Y. M. C. A. in San Francisco.

The Richmond Y. M. D. five won the right to meet the champs of the trans-bay counties by defeating the Oakland organization 38 to 18. If they win tomorrow night's contest with San Francisco the locals will meet the champions of the San Joaquin valley division at San Jose this week-end. The game will be played at the state Y. M. C. A. directors' convention at San Jose. The winners of the valley section have not yet been decided.

Several local Y. M. C. A. teams will also take part in Californiad basketball competition during the next two weeks. The 80 pound Richmond squad will travel to Oakland Saturday afternoon to play against the Berkeley lightweights. The local unlimiteds will meet the Oakland heavys Monday night on the Richmond Y. M. C. A. court at 8 o'clock.

Californiad competition in other subjects will soon be started throughout the state. Everything from ping pong to oratory will be on the program. Richmond is intending to enter the majority of these events.

CADETS TO PLAY LOCAL FIVES FRIDAY

The San Rafael Military Academy cagers will cross the bay Friday afternoon to clash with the Richmond union high school varsity and B quintets in the local high school gymnasium.

The San Rafael Military students have been close rivals with the Richmond high school basketball aggregations for many years. During these years of competition, Richmond has been on the heavy end of the scores in a majority of games. However, these games have often been won by narrow margins and there is nothing to prevent the San Rafaelites from registering a win against the locals Friday.

The Richmond varsity started out the present season in a rather shaky fashion, but it has come back strong during the last few contests. After winning two games in succession from Hayward high school, the local high school athletes have now succeeded in changing the opinions of those who, judging by the season's first few games, decided that Richmond was out for a win-less year. The Richmond boys have steadily improved their playing caliber, and are now at the peak of their ability. Friday's game will be a real test for the Richmond outfits, for they will then be playing against a team that is known in Marin county as a first class loop squad.

As a result of their loss to Hayward Friday night after playing two extra quarters, the Richmond B's are determined to bring their standing to where it was previous to that fatal game. The local lightweights have given the high school fans something to think about, and if they had remained in the Alameda County Athletic league, it is probable that they would have come out somewhere near the top.

Women's Gym Class Enjoys Social Meet

An enjoyable social affair was held by members of the women's gymnasium class last night at Mammy's Place. A large number were present at this first social event of the organization held this season.

The party was held following the regular class held every Tuesday evening in the Roosevelt Junior high school gymnasium.

The class is under the direction of W. L. Seawright.

Roosevelt School Athletes Presented With Pennant

A pennant for supremacy in athletics during the 1928-1929 season was presented to the pupils of Roosevelt junior high school recently by W. L. Seawright, director of playground activities in Richmond.

Upon presentation of the pennant, which is a perpetual trophy, F. C. Shallenberger, principal of Roosevelt and Longfellow junior high schools, congratulated the Roosevelt athletes upon their success during the past season.

Roosevelt has competed with the Longfellow teams each year for the perpetual trophy.

ALUMNI, HIGH FIVES MEET FEB. 21

Class loyalty will be at its highest pitch at Richmond union high school on the night of Feb. 21, when the alumni of the local high school clash in its annual cage battle with the youngsters they left behind them.

The game of the evening will be O'Connell and Leo Sassoni. Things have always been pretty even between the alumni and the pupils of Richmond high, and it seems as if they will continue to be so. It will certainly be interesting to watch the spectacle of former high school cagers fighting against their former companions in victory and defeat. Boys who graduated last year, including "Hank" Page, "Toots" Hall, Pat O'Connell and Leo Sassoni who ought to provide some additional opposition for the present high school athletes.

An interesting contest will be staged when girls of the Richmond high's alumni and the present high school girl athletes tangle at 8 o'clock the same evening.

The high school B cagers will clash with the lightweight alumni athletes at 7 o'clock in the first game on the card of Feb. 21 at the high school gymnasium.

The high school band is expected to be present to add to the gaiety of this annual occasion.

CARNERA WINS IN SECOND ROUND

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11.— UP— Primo Carnera, Italy's gigantic showman of the ring, "showed" a skeptical Missouri crowd his prowess tonight, knocking out Buster Martin, Oklahoma policeman, in 50 seconds of the second round of a scheduled ten round bout.

Martin was knocked unconscious by a powerful blow from the vast Venitian's fist, and was out for some time after flopping to the canvas, while the throng, numbering more than 20,000 roared in derision.

Carnera toyed with his opponent throughout the first round, in which his right hands to the head had Martin wobbling and clinching at every opportunity.

As soon as the second round began, Primo settled to work, and a right swing flush to Buster's jaw stretched the Tulsa policeman senseless on his back on the canvas.

All Star Five Martinez Sons Tangle Tonight

The Richmond All-Star unlimiteds will attempt to avenge their recent defeat by the Martinez Native Son cagers when they clash with the Martinez athletes tonight in the Richmond Union high school gymnasium.

When the pick of the local city league traveled to Martinez last Thursday night, they received a 40 to 33 licking at the hands of the fast Martinez five. The Richmondites will have to be at their highest standard in tonight's contest if they expect to hold the Martinez outfit in control. Martinez is the only team that has defeated the Richmond All-Star unlimiteds this season.

There will be no lightweight game on tonight's card at the high school. The unlimiteds will tangle at 8 o'clock.

The Richmond All-Star unlimiteds and lightweights will travel to Petaluma Friday night to meet the Petaluma cage stars.

Mathematicians Win S. O. Loop Contest Here

The accounting department hoopsters of the Standard Oil company's main offices, once again proved their superiority over the Yield department team by administering to them a 26-21 defeat in the Longfellow gymnasium yesterday afternoon at 5:30.

Murdock was again high point man for the winners with 11 points, but was outclassed by Gillard of the losers, who garnered 14 points.

The winners (26)—Murdock (11) Damon (6), forwards; Armstrong (5), center; Brains (4), Michel, guards.

The losers (21)—Gillard (14), Bramstadt (5), forwards; Rinell, center; Brooks, Spencer (2), guards. Mitchel alternated with Brooks during the game.

26 ELKS SIGNED FOR GOLF TOURNEY

Twenty-six Richmond Elks have signed up to enter the golf tournament to be played between the Richmond and Berkeley lodges of the order at the Carquinez Golf club on March 1.

Judge A. A. Alstrom, tournament chairman is arranging the event, which will be one of the biggest ever held by the Elks.

Those who have signed up for the tournament so far are:

Dr. A. B. Hinkley, S. B. Merry, C. V. Mero, M. Hazelton, Russel Meyers, A. A. Alstrom, Dr. U. S. Abbott, J. R. Vaughn, F. E. Mero, Phil Harlow, Dr. C. W. Cole, Pat Macdonough, Roy Dorr, Roy Eakle, J. O. Ford, H. M. Flint, T. Duggan, C. Brombacher, Phil Jones, L. Ballenger, R. H. Stratton, I. R. Vaughn George Thornton, Leo Marcollo, A. P. Hill, and E. Durand.

FIELDS LOOKS GOOD AGAINST SOUTHPAWS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11—Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, and Young Corbett III, Fresno contender, are finally down to hard training for their ten-round decision contest at the Recreation ball park here on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22.

Fields, who has never fought a southpaw, is using several experienced port-siders to spar with and his showing against them has been surprising. In fact, they do not seem to be bothering him in the least.

In bouts with "Lefty" Cooper, "Red" Uhlan, and Billy Adams, all well-known southpaws, he has flashed exceptionally fine form. His aggressive two-fisted attack works well against them, and, as this will be his style of attack against Corbett, the latter will have to be at his best to hold the champion off.

There is bad feeling between the Fields and Corbett camps. This is on the level and not part of a build-up to aid the gate receipts. Fields is peeved at remarks made by Corbett and his handlers that he has ducked the issue with Corbett time and again, and was forced to sign for the coming match.

Corbett, who is training at South City, several miles from here, is drawing banner crowds to the Italian-American Athletic club gym where he is training and he will have a large following from this section to cheer him on to victory in the coming battle.

Roosevelt Fives Play Garfield Teams Today

The 95 and 105 pound quintets of Richmond junior high school will travel to Garfield junior high school today to play the Garfield fives at 3:30 o'clock.

The local junior cagers suffered severe defeats in their last tournament with the Garfield lightweight squads, although the Roosevelt varsity was victorious over the Garfield heavyweights. The Roosevelt lightweights were poor on the defensie in their recent games with Garfield. The locals have been working hard to improve on the defense in their recent contests.

The 105 pound game will start at 3:30 o'clock and will be followed by the 90 pound clash.

Tennis Tourney To Be Planned

Plans for a city tennis tourney will be formed tonight at the meeting of the Richmond Tennis association at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock.

The tournament will probably be held in the early spring. Schedules are expected to be drawn up at tonight's meeting.

W. L. Seawright, president of the association, will preside.

Scout Troop To Be Reformed In West Richmond

West Richmond is to have its own Boy Scout troop.

Members of the Washington P.-T.A. at their meeting yesterday voted to sponsor the troop, which will probably be known as Troop No. 1.

The western section of the city has been without a Scout troop since 1917, when the old Troop No. 1 was disbanded.

Since that time, however, a large number of boys living in that district have joined troops in the central section of the city.

Appointment of troop committee members, Scoutmasters and assistants will be made within a few days, it is expected.

Past Masters Night Planned By Alpha Lodge

Plans for Past Masters Night to be held in the Masonic hall next Tuesday night, were made at a meeting of the Alpha Masonic lodge last night.

Miller Assumes New Duties As Local Postmaster

John A. Miller, former deputy internal revenue collector for Contra Costa county assumed his duties as postmaster of Richmond yesterday.

With James N. Long, former post master, who resigned to assume the post of supervisor, Miller was busy at the postoffice yesterday learning new duties.

Nature's Medicine for Constipation

The greatest remedy for constipation known to mankind is provided by Nature in the form of herb juices. Plantlax, the remarkable liver tonic and internal cleanser, is a special combination of juices or extracts taken from harmless medicinal herbs. Not only does it sweep the bowels free of all accumulated waste matter, but it acts like a charm on the liver, causing that organ to throw off excess bile which pollutes the entire system. The very first dose gives amazing results. You lose that dull, loggy feeling which makes you want to sleep so much. The coating on your tongue disappears. Headaches, sour stomach, indigestion, gas, bilious attacks, dizzy spells, sallow complexion or other symptoms of constipation and torpid liver can no longer exist when your system is thoroughly cleansed of its impurities.

Anybody can take Plantlax without injurious effects. It works in a gentle, easy way—while you sleep. Large bottle $1 at all good drug stores.

P. G. TO ADJUST PLATES FOR NEW GAS

Expenditures of more than $3,000,000 are being planned by the Pacific Gas and Electric company for additions and improvements to its gas and electric facilities in the east bay during the current year, according to an announcement by Lee H. Newbert, manager of the eastbay division of the company.

Newbert said the largest single item in the company's budget for this territory is $280,000 which will be spent in converting consumers appliances for the use of natural gas. The appliances must be adjusted because of the high heat content of the new fuel.

It was reported that natural gas would be turned into the Richmond mains Monday. A large crew of service men, according to the report, will be in the field to make necessary adjustments, to provide for more efficient use of the new fuel.

The gas will flow to Richmond, through a new main just constructed by way of Panhandle boulevard, Potrero avenue, and Eighth street.

Among the major items of expenditure in the gas department are: $150,000.00 for the extension of mains to supply industries with natural gas; $250,000.00 for the extension of secondary mains to take on new business. It is estimated that 5000 new gas services will be installed, calling for an expenditure of $125,000.00; $280,000.00 for the conversion of consumers' appliances for the use of natural gas $31,500.00 for replacement and enlargement of mains to care for additional business.

In the electrical department the primary expenditures will be: $23-800.00 for the rebuilding of transmission lines out of Livermore; $12,200.00 for the rebuilding of private telephone lines; $38,800.00 for the rebuilding of 11 1-2 miles of the South Tower-Orinda line from Crockett to Wild Cat; $21,500 for additional line capacity in the vicinity of Newark and Alvarado; $23,645.00 for the rebuilding of lines in the vicinity of San Lorenzo junction and Ashland; $210,340.00 for miscellaneous joint pole reconstruction.

Newbert states: "Due to the continued growth and expansion of the territory covering both Alameda and Contra Costa counties, a large portion of this year's budget will be for the provision of additional line and substation facilities to meet the present and anticipated growth throughout the territory."

Writ Against Judgment Given

A permanent writ against the execution of judgment in the court of Justice of the Peace A. A. Alstrom against J. A. DeLong was yesterday issued by Judge T. W. Harris of the superior court in Oakland.

A suit filed by T. O. DeLong of Richmond in Judge Alstroms court against J. A. DeLong for an unpaid board bill started the difficulty. T. O. DeLong was represented by Lee Windrem. The two men are brothers.

Judge Alstrom, when the defendant failed to appear in court, defaulted the case to the plaintiff.

On the grounds that Windrem failed to establish a jurisdiction of facts in the papers for the suit, and before Judge Alstrom could issue the necessary papers levying against the property of the defendant, J. A. DeLong filed suit in superior court in Oakland asking that the execution of judgment be prohibited.

The defendant also declares he paid the money.

was estimated at between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. The cargo, which included shallac and potash that had been brought across an ocean only to furnish fuel for a marine disaster, was valued at some $500,000.

The Munchen docked at 9:30 a.m. a day and a half late. The 102 first class passengers, the 43 cabin passengers and 38 of the 116 steerage passengers had disembarked and were grouped on the pier.

Then the crew lifted the covers off an after hatch and wisps of smoke curled up.

Blasts Spread Fire

The first alarm was merely a precautionary measure, as there was no indication that the blaze was already of startling proprotions. Engine companies responded, as did the fireboat Willett.

Efforts to control the blaze had only begun when the first explosion tore the stern. At that time the remaining steerage passengers—German immigrants whose introduction to America took a startling furn, were herded off and the crew raced for safety. The tugboat Newton steamed up and turned its fire fighting apparatus on the Munchen.

Then came another explosion—or perhaps it was two and finally a third that made the others seem puny.

Hurley 50 Feet

Lieut. Duryea was standing on a platform nearing the top mast, directing the play of deck hose, when he was catapulated off his feet and tossed 50 feet into the water.

Pilot Harvey and Fireman Bolfinger, Gilliam and Farley also were hurled overboard. Captain Digney was struck by a mass of flying splinters.

Meanwhile electrician Sanke stuck to his switchboard, apparently hopeful that he could help by cutting off power. There was an explosion and Sanke was engulfed in a burst of flames.

Throughout the day, from two piers and the damaged tugboat Newton, firemen kept their hose trained on the listing ship.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Ave. Oakland, Cal. Nov. 19, 1929.
THE FONG WAN HERB CO.
Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.
I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth. This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.
By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.
Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.
I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.
Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

"GENERAL CRACK" BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

General Crack, soldier of fortune, has revolted against Emperor Leopold, the instant after having him crowned at Brussels. He vows vengeance for Leopold's dastardly act in compromising Crack's wife, the lovely Princess Eleanora, whom he had to leave the instant after the marriage ceremony. Leopold had ridden, incognito, to Crack's estate, and spent a night with Eleanora. Now the Empire is dismembered, thanks to Crack, who captures the Archduchess Maria Luisa, Leopold's sister, and plans, as revenge, to compromise her. Leopold flies with his panic-stricken remnant of an army.

"Give me a toilet case, and ten minutes; and I will attend your master at his supper," she said.

The valet withdrew immediately, and almost immediately returned with a luxurious toilet case, which bore, as she instantly noted, the arms of Kurland.

Maria Luisa snatched out the mirror and stared at herself, and the bitterest of all bitter thoughts pierced her heart: "If I were a beautiful woman, none of this would matter!"

He did not stir as she entered, nor did the fiddlers take any heed of her; all three seemed absorbed in the music, the wanton, rich music. Her pride was now stronger than her cowardice. Under cover of the melody, she crossed the gleaming floor, and dropped her captor a curtsey as if she had met him at her brother's court.

He would be avenged through her!

"It seems," remarked Christian, regarding her without interest, "a long while since Brussels, and our last meeting after the Opera, eh?"

"Longer to me than to you, Monseigneur, I dare say," she replied, faintly, "since time drags heavily with the unfortunate."

"We need not talk of misfortune to-night," he smiled. "Let us, Madame, have our relaxations and diversions—as your brother had in Ottenheim—sweet interludes to the fatigues of war."

He asked: "Where is your brother?"

And she shook her shamed head.

"He flies like a hare," smiled Christian; "and like a hare will he be caught at last, exhausted, in his final retreat."

She was stung into some poor reply by the unutterable contempt behind his words:

"I do not know the seat of all your malice," she said, "or why you thus discard all manner of civility with me. God may not forgive you for what you do!"

"I," smiled Christian, "have long ago resolved not to forgive God."

Maria Luisa continued to stare at him.

"Do you remember," he asked with curiosity, "that your hand was offered to me, Madame, last autumn?"

"Will you," she demanded piteously, "further distress my honour by referring to what is solely a humiliation to my mind?"

"Humiliation?" he repeated. "Your brother did not consider humiliation then; he considered his offer another subtle shift to gain my services; but we will not talk of it, since it displeases you."

"I have been all my life most unfortunate," said the Archduchess, "enmeshed with words, trapped into pitfalls; in every way scorned and abandoned. If my pride ever had any aspiring, it is cast down now, and forever, I think. Monseigneur, whatever your spite and malice against my House, is not this enough for you? Cannot you have the pity to let me depart?"

"Where would you go?" smiled Christian; "the weather is wild, the country racked and ruined."

"Anywhere!" she replied, wildly. "Let me but walk out into the night—return to the barn where they found me. Anywhere. . . ."

"But you would perish. Are you not well housed here?"

"Heaven forgive you for your mockery and for your cruelty! I at least have known no fault towards you!"

"Is it cruelty to keep you here for company?" he smiled. "It is long since I have enjoyed the conversation of one so exalted—an Archduchess: an Emperor's sister!"

Then, discarding his mood of mockery, he added, sombrely:

"Whether you will or no, you shall not go until the morning. Then you may return to your brother and tell him where you have spent your night."

"It is impossible," she stammered, "that you would force me to remain here?"

"There was one thing that I thought an impossibility," he answered. "I had, within a narrow space, a little heaven on earth, and I thought it impossible that it should be defiled, or even spied upon by other men. But that is gone!"

"I have not wronged you!" she murmured, in the extreme of bewilderment and fear, shame and humiliation.

Christian laughed.

"The Caesar's sister—eh? A fair enough piece, by candlelight! Tomorrow you shall go where you will, sufficiently escorted; tonight, you remain with me?"

"And all your camp to know it?" she cried.

"There will be no secrecy," replied Christian, "as there was none at Ottenheim."

Maria Luisa rose and clasped her hands upon her heart. She felt the little metal image pressing into her bosom.

"Why do you keep talking of Ottenheim?" she said. "I do not understand what you mean. Is not your wife there? Why have you left her so long? She is of my age and my helplessness, she also might be exposed to these incredible horrors of war. Can you think of her and still deal with me so atrociously?" She was further terrified by the effect of her words. Christian looked ghastly; she thought that he would faint.

"There is something here I do not know," she muttered, recoiling.

"You will soon know," he replied; "when I send you back to your brother, he will tell you." Then he raised his voice, with a dreadful effort at self-control. "Come, Madame, the supper is set!" And he poured out two glasses of wine.

He drank, filling his glass again and again, as if he toasted her mute anguish. "It is not every night one has an Emperor's sister for company! And I have been very lonely of late, pestered by dreams which seem to come from Hell."

"You have made the whole land a hell," she muttered; "a ruin from which I think none of us can ever arise!"

"Can you help me dispel my dreams?" smiled Christian. "Perhaps with you I might forget, for an hour or two of darkness, eh? Take off your coat," he added, harshly. "The room is warm enough!"

And, as she stood immobile, he made a movement as if himself to divest her of her heavy outer garment. At this, with instant, nervous fingers, Maria Luisa unbuttoned the coat, and dropped it on the floor, showing her long waistcoat and torn, embroidered silk, and the ruffled shirt opened on the bosom. Here she put her hand, driving the silver image into her flesh.

"When the reckoning comes," she asked, wildly, "what will you say?"

"There is no reckoning," smiled Christian; "I hold my destiny in the hollow of my hand."

He had come nearer, and was looking at her harshly.

"You are too tired," he said briefly. "You are overwrought; will you not eat and drink and rest with me and take up these troubles in the morning?"

He put out his hand to touch her, but in a second she was away, and pressed hard and frantically against the smooth, white wall.

"So hateful to you, eh?" he muttered, and looked her up and down. "Did you know I was pursuing you?" he added. "For weeks now, from place to place—always on your track; did you know that?"

"No," she answered, "and why should it have been?"

"Because only through you can I balance my account with your brother."

"What has he done?" cried Maria Luisa; and Christian, gulping his wine, said:

"Ask him to tell you tomorrow."

An extraordinary stillness filled the room. It seemed to Maria Luisa as if the world had stopped about them. Through an opening in the heavy, pale curtains, she could see the vivid comet in a rift of the sombre snow-clouds, and all earthly things seemed to dwindle to insignificance.

'KIDNAPED BOY' FOUND BY SCOUTS

Scout Verne Orr, 15, of Troop No. 11.

Young Orr saw a car parked at the corner, examined the license number and stepped up on the running board.

Scout Insistant

In spite of the fact that Duggan insisted that the boy was not the one the Scouts were looking for, Orr insisted that it was the boy and ordered Duggan to drive him back to where the Scouts were stationed.

Duggan followed the instructions and "returned" the boy.

Scout commissioners expressed their satisfaction last night following the mobilization, lauding scoutmasters for the efficient manner in which they had trained their troops.

Chief of Police Daniel Cox was an interested spectator at the mobilization and expressed his approval of the work.

Scout Executive Cox declared that Troop No. 11, under the direction of Carl Rasmussen, turned out equipped with three days' rations and equipment.

Troop No. 5, under the leadership of E. J. Barnhart, had the largest number of boys to answer the call. There were 24 present from the troop.

The exact hour and day of the mobilization was known only to Cox and three other members of the committee.

NAVAL PARLEY AGREES ON SUBS

subject had been referred to the committee of the whole, this action was merely to draft a provision putting the principle into effect. The stipulation was expected to take the form that no merchant ship could be sunk during war time unless the safety of its crew and passengers was provided for.

New Problem

Meanwhile the British spokesman said there was possibility of another plenary session "not before Friday," to discuss the method by which naval tonnage shall be apportioned to the five powers. A committee of experts appointed to lay the groundwork for submission to the committee of the whole tomorrow, was reported to have drafted a blank tonnage table without figures.

The table divides war craft into the following classes: Battleships, aircraft carriers, 8-in. gun cruisers, cruisers with 6-in. and smaller guns, destroyers, submarines. Allowance is made to merge the small cruiser and destroyer classes in the cases of France and Italy, so as to give those smaller powers greater fluidity in arranging their fleets.

Premiers Visit

The table provides spaces to be filled in by non-conference powers if they wish to join the agreement later. This provision permits the table to be incorporated in the League of Nations' disarmament plan.

As a further step in settling the tonnage dispute, Premier Andre Tardieu and his foreign minister, Aristide Briand of France, visited Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald at the House of Commons late today. They were said to have set forth their tonnage requirements at 800,000 tons, which would mean that France intends to carry to completion its present naval program ending in 1942.
